Managing Partner, ArchEcology

Nancy Henderson has over 20 years experience in architectural design and project management. For the last ten years, her career has focused almost exclusively on green design and construction. In 2006, she founded ArchEcology to focus on sustainable consulting for dozens of commercial and residential projects. For projects pursuing LEED or other green building program certification, she provides an expert understanding of each system and how it applies to the project. She advises the design team on green building methodologies throughout the design and construction process, facilitating an integrated approach to decision-making that maximizes both environmental and economic benefit.

Her knowledge and experience have made her a sought after participant on many Boards and committees including the City of Seattle Design Review Board, Seattle Design Commission: Monorail Review Panel, AIA Policy Committee on Sustainability, Common Ground Board of Directors, Housing Development Consortium Board of Directors and the Mount Baker Board of Directors.

City of Seattle Capital GREEN Updates
ArchEcology worked with the City of Seattle to develop Capital GREEN, a program that provides a consistent comprehensive sustainable approach to widely varied construction projects ranging from small projects, to tenant improvements and renovations. The program was updated and expanded in 2013 for a City-wide roll out.

Denny Terrace Measurement & Verification
ArchEcology was retained by a local architect to model the energy and water use profile of an existing high rise apartment building for the Seattle Housing Authority and recommend renovation strategies that could achieve energy and water use reduction goals. With construction now complete, Nancy is calibrating this model to measure actual annual usage and verify the achievement of reduction goals.
