The City Council,
Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen:

As one of the signers of the petitions by the citizens of West Seattle, asking for a drinking fountain for horses, I wish to say a word in regard to the matter, and which I know to be approved by others.

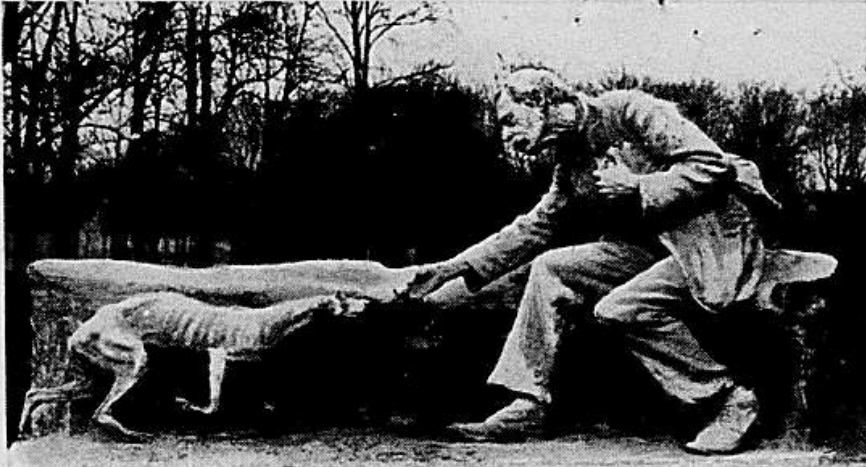

We need a combination drinking fountain which contains a sanitary drinking fountain for the horses, a bubbling fountain for the people, and a sanitary fountain, or arrangement where the small animals, such as dogs, ^{etc.} can get a drink. Many people neglect to put water out for their dogs, ^{and cats.} After they must go thirsty in the heat of the summer!

And it is said that the rabies is often caused by dog suffering from thirst.

Therefore it is a safety measure as well as a humane act to install drinking places for the dogs, as well as for horses and people.

Very respectfully yours,
(Mrs.) Annie M. Burgess

A Dog's Prayer

We are the little brothers,
Homeless in cold and heat;
Four-footed little beggars,
Roaming the city street;
Snatching a bone from the gutter,
Creeping through alleys drear,
Stoned and sworn at and beaten,
Our hearts consumed with fear.
Is your heart too hard to listen
To a starving puppy's cries?
Or too gay for the patient pleading
in a dog's beseeching eyes?
Behold us, your little brothers,
Starved, beaten, oppressed;
Stretch out a hand to help us,
That we may have food and rest.

The Horse's Prayer

"I cannot tell you when I am thirsty, so give me clean, cool water often. Save me, by all means in your power, from that fatal disease—the glanders."

No, a horse can't talk, but he can suffer, and if disease results from quenching his thirst at a fountain where the water is covered with slime and dust, it is evident all means in your power have not been taken to provide clean, cool water and to save him from imbibing germs that lurk in the impurities floating in a common trough.

We are offering to the public sanitary fountains that have real merit. We are giving the best possible values. We have tried to answer the horse's prayer in a practical way by designing a fountain that will deliver clean, cool water free from infection.

The horse is in a state of "watchful waiting."
