| Background: Ted is an architect with GGLO in Seattle, holding the title of Associate. He has designed and managed community-based urban mixed use projects for over 14 years, focusing in particular on those that have complex considerations, such as Shoreline overlays, Rezones, and ECA's. Ted has a strong design background with diverse influences that draw from world travel. He acknowledges the need for design solutions to succeed on cultural, artistic, economic and technical levels. Ted's recent focus has been integrating decentralized storm and water quality facilities into urban mixed-use projects in Seattle and King County, with results often performing beyond applicable codes. Ted holds a BS in Architecture from the University of Texas at Austin. | | |

 CITY CLERK

Ted C. Panton, AIA

Associate

Ted has designed and managed numerous complex master plan and mixed-used infill projects throughout the Pacific Northwest. He has used his extensive knowledge of Architecture and Urban Design to create meaningful design solutions on a diverse group of projects. Ted also brings a strong design background to compliment his project management skills. He acknowledges the need for successful design solutions to succeed on both artistic and technical levels.

His strong background with Land Use issues have also been applied to advocacy and consulting efforts with the Southeast Asian community.

His passion for environmentally sound development practices have led him to champion Low Impact Design measures in our critical areas. He is currently working with the Shoreline and Coastal Planners Group to introduce the Greenshores sustainable development standard to Washington State.
