Set against the backdrop of a high school football season, this Academy Award winning documentary is an intimate chronicle of three underprivileged student-athletes from inner-city Memphis and the volunteer coach trying to help them beat the odds on and off the field. The film features Bill Courtney, O.C. Brown and Montrail 'Money' Brown.

Dan Lindsay met co-director T.J. Martin in 2008, when both were hired to edit the documentary Last Cup: Road to the World Series of Beer Pong. They decided to co-direct a documentary together and approached producer Rick Middlemas, whose story idea led to their Oscar-winning film Undefeated.

T.J. Martin grew up in Seattle on Capitol Hill and in the Central District, graduating from Roosevelt High School in 1997. He's been a filmmaker since graduating from Western Washington University, in Bellingham, where he began his first film: the documentary "A Day of Hype in America". From there, he moved to Los Angeles, where he currently resides, landing work as a film editor.
