

Priority Action Steps to Prevent and End Youth and Young Adult Homelessness

An Implementation Plan

This plan was supported with resources from the Raikes Foundation, and developed by Building Changes in coordination with United Way of King County. The development of the plan was guided by a Youth and Young Adult Homelessness Funders Group and Task Force, under the governance of the Committee to End Homelessness in King County (CEHKC). See Appendices for a list of members of the Funders Group and Task Force.

A wide range of stakeholders participated in the development of the strategies included in this plan, including youth and young adults experiencing homelessness. We are grateful to all those who contributed.

Building Changes consultant team was led by Mark Putnam (Director of Consulting), consultants Robert Davis and Kimberlee Tully, Alice Shobe (Executive Director), Kari Murphy (Homeless Programs Specialist), and Alice Watson (Program Assistant).

Section 1 – Introduction

Youth and young adult homelessness is prevalent throughout King County. An estimated 5,000-10,000 youth experience homelessness during the course of each year in King County. On any given night, approximately 1,000 young people are homeless. As is ubiquitous with homeless data, these numbers must be accompanied with the caveat that they are estimates, and that we do not have a good grasp of the full scale of youth/young adults experiencing homelessness.

This is a social problem that well-intentioned stakeholders throughout King County have identified and tried to address for years. Funders, providers, advocates, and youth/young adults have developed and implemented plans and programs to address this issue. Although each planning effort gathered data and recommendations from multiple stakeholders for system improvements and investments, they were only partially implemented.¹

Providers and programs throughout King County serve a great number of homeless youth and young adults and have supported thousands of youth in their development toward adulthood. Yet, youth and young adults continue to become homeless, and it is believed that many ultimately become homeless adults or part of homeless families. This is not necessarily the failure of the homeless response system. Other systems that come into contact with youth/young adults who may be at-risk of becoming homeless, such as child welfare, juvenile justice, and schools, have culpability too.

Yet, significantly, the homeless response system is still not able to answer key questions about youth/young adult homelessness, including:

- What’s the need? How many youth/young adults are homeless?
- What works to address it? Which housing or service interventions are most effective at ending homelessness for youth/young adults of diverse needs and circumstances?
- Are we making progress? As a community, are we reducing the number of youth/young adults who become homeless, the length of time they are homeless, and reducing return episodes of homelessness?

This plan provides a blue print for answering these questions, and a step toward developing a data-driven system for ending youth and young adult homelessness. We are now at the cusp of being able to tangibly define the scale of the problem we are addressing, and how we can best address it.

Scope of this Plan

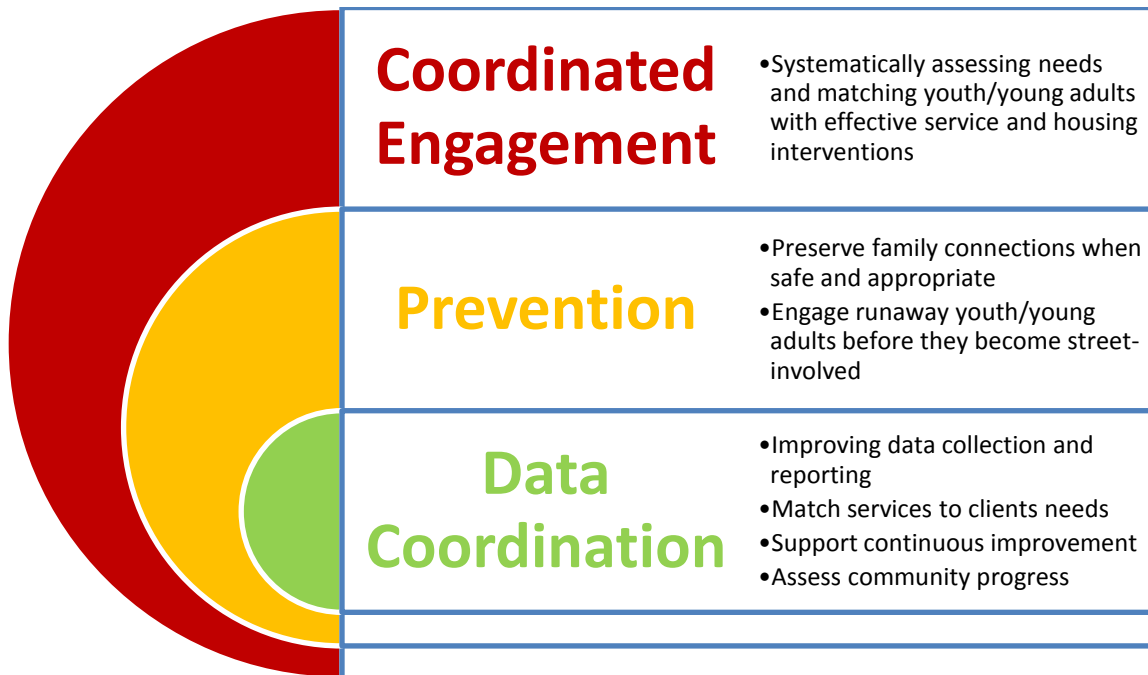

In 2011, a broad community effort was embarked upon to improve the system serving youth/young adults who become homeless. Private funders, led by the Raikes Foundation, United Way of King County, and the Medina Foundation, identified three priority strategies, and a Task Force was formed under the auspices of the Committee to End Homelessness in King County to develop an action plan for implementation of the strategies. This work was supported by the Raikes Foundation and led by Building Changes.

¹ See Appendices for a summary of strategies recommended in recent King County homeless youth/young adult plans.

An extensive community process was held, involving more than 100 stakeholders, including 30 homeless youth/young adults. This process was guided by two groups – the Youth/Young Adult Homelessness Funders Group and the Youth/Young Adult Homelessness Task Force.² In addition, Building Changes convened advisory workgroups to refine three priority strategies.

Priority Strategies

These efforts, and this report, focus on three priority strategies:

These strategies, when implemented, will make a significant difference in our ability to prevent youth/young adults from becoming homeless and serve them effectively when they do become homeless. Significantly, implementation of these priorities will also provide us with the answers to the questions posed above – what’s the need? What works to address it? Are we making progress?

With the answers to these questions, King County will have a structure in place for planning and developing a comprehensive system for addressing youth and young adult homelessness.

What this Plan Does Not Address

This is not a comprehensive plan for addressing youth and young adult homelessness in King County. This planning effort did not set out to complete such a plan. Instead, the intent was set an implementation plan for the three priority strategies.

This is not a needs assessment. It does not signify a new attempt to quantify the number of youth/young adults experiencing homelessness, nor does it attempt to describe the variances in need by region, race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, or otherwise.

² See Appendices for lists of members of these committees and their charters.

However, these strategies will provide us with the data to accurately project need and a comprehensive plan. In addition, the Youth/Young Adult Task Force approved in concept a system-wide services model, which was proposed by Auburn Youth Resources, Cocoon House, Friends of Youth, and YouthCare.³ This model can serve as a framework for the development of the comprehensive plan. The plan must be a data-driven plan, utilizing the information gathered upon implementation of the three priority strategies to recommend:

- The scale of housing and services interventions to meet need
- The type of housing and services interventions that are most effective
- The variances in interventions required to address needs of youth/young adults in each region of the county
- The variances in interventions required to address needs of youth/young adults, including LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, questioning) youth, youth of color, immigrant/refugee youth, youth exiting the child welfare system, and youth exiting the juvenile justice system.
- Strategies for integrating service delivery and data collection across systems, including mental health, chemical dependency, juvenile justice, schools, and child welfare.

While we do not yet have this comprehensive data or plan, it is quite clear that youth/young adults continue to languish in homelessness. It is imperative that programs must be supported, and that we will need to expand housing and services to meet current need. It is also urgent that we integrate services and housing at a systems and provider level, so that youth/young adults have access to the full range of interventions that they need. Funders and providers must continue to work together to support youth/young adults to get into stable homes, and develop into stable adults.

Alignment with Other Homeless Planning

This plan reaffirms and builds upon the goals of King County's Ten-Year Plan to End Homelessness, as well as multiple local, state and federal and community planning processes.

While the focus of this initiative is on bringing about countywide system changes for addressing youth/young adult homelessness, it is understood that this will only be achieved in concert with a variety of initiatives. Currently, our community is also working to:

- Implement an extensive realignment of approaches to ending family homelessness
- Increase affordable housing opportunities for households experiencing homelessness through ongoing production of housing units and increased access to existing rental units, while maximizing the use of rental subsidies
- Examine the housing interventions for homeless youth/young adults and their effectiveness
- Determine an appropriate response to ensure that youth exiting the foster care system find stable housing
- Develop a vision for coordinating resource delivery to anyone experiencing homelessness
- Fully implement and utilize the Homeless Management and Information System (Safe Harbors).
- Build the public and political will to end homelessness, including advocacy efforts.

³ See Appendices for overview of this model.

Momentum

Funders and providers have worked collaboratively and iteratively over these past six months to develop and propose a more effective, coordinated regional response to youth/young adult homelessness. As a result, there is significant momentum in place to implement the three priority strategies. Providers have already begun taking the initiative to improve service coordination. Funders are meeting regularly to improve their coordination as well. All involved feel an urgency to make the systems enhancements outlined in this plan.

In addition, there is national focus on the work we are doing in King County. Even though we are only in the planning stage currently, national leaders such as the National Alliance to End Homelessness (NAEH) are eagerly monitoring our progress. NAEH supports the strategies we are developing, primarily because they have the potential to provide King County, but also the homeless research field, with data about the housing and services interventions that are most effective in ending youth/young adult homelessness. There is currently very limited data about the scope of youth/young adult homelessness, the typology of youth who become homeless, and the interventions that work youth homelessness. Therefore, there is a likelihood that implementation of these strategies will provide us with an opportunity to increase our community's competitiveness for local, state, federal and philanthropic funding.

Section 2 – Vision for Future System

Youth and young adults throughout King County, like anywhere, are imaginative, curious, bright, and optimistic. They have ideas and solutions and answers. During the course of meeting with youth and young adults living on the streets or in shelters or temporarily with friends, it became clear that they had thought a lot about how we – funders, providers, parents, teachers, and youth/young adults themselves – could collectively develop a solution for ending youth/young adult homelessness.

These youth/young adults clearly articulated, through very personal reflections of their own experiences, that the current system of youth/young adult housing and services was not working as effectively as the providers, planners, and funders had hoped, despite good intentions. They described a patchwork of housing and services programs that they found through their own initiative and through word of mouth. They related stories of trauma and loss of family bonds that were raw and often unresolved. They described the fits and starts of their journeys and how providers helped them along the way. They expressed frustration with how hard it was to find services, with the length of waiting lists, and with providers that seemed to not be working together. Significantly, youth/young adults also identified leadership opportunities for themselves in being part of the solution.

The vision that they identified included:

- Availability of supports for families – parents and youth/young adults – before the crisis, to prevent the breakup of the family unit
- A network of providers offering coordinated services that are accessible equally throughout the county
- A transparent system that puts information in the hands of youth/young adults, such as menus of available services and “user reviews” to inform their decisions
- A system that supports youth/young adults to build personal accountability and to develop skills that will support their growth and self-sufficiency
- Involving youth/young adults in the solutions, through mentorship and employment opportunities

This vision, provided by youth and young adults experiencing homelessness now in various parts of King County, has informed the development of a proposed new approach to ending youth and young adult homelessness in our communities. Providers and funders, as described in the previous section, have collaborated on a planning process that has resulted in the development of strategies that support the vision articulated by homeless youth/young adults.

The three short-term priorities for investment described in the next section make significant enhancements to the existing services system. However, they will only be effective if the capacity of the housing and services can meet need, which it cannot currently. More housing and services programs are needed, particularly in areas with minimal resources and growing need. However, by implementing these system enhancement strategies, youth/young adults and their families will begin to notice a very different community response when they experience crisis or become homeless:

1. COORDINATED ENGAGEMENT

Equal access to appropriate types of housing and services from multiple points throughout the county (Coordinated Engagement strategy). This could be achieved by developing common, consistent tools and processes for assessing and referring youth/young adults seeking housing. This model would emphasize diverting youth from entering the system and provide youth/young adults with increased access to the services they need to quickly bounce back after experiencing a crisis or short bout of homelessness. There is currently not enough housing and services to meet need. Additional capacity will need to be developed for the success of this strategy.

2. PREVENTION

2A. Targeted prevention services for families that are experiencing crises to prevent youth/young adults leaving the home and becoming homeless (Prevention – Family Connections strategy). This could be achieved by providing outreach and education to families and caring adults about services available to them, and increasing services that counsel youth/young adults and families towards a goal of strengthening family connections, when that is an appropriate and safe option. This strategy would provide families with tools to stabilize and could effectively divert many youth/young adults from ever entering the homeless system. This strategy would require new programming and integration of service delivery with existing family reunification, preservation, and crisis coordination programs.

2B. Education, outreach, and immediate response when youth/young adults leave home so they know where to turn to find help and a safe place to stay (Prevention – Early Intervention for Runaways strategy). This strategy provides youth/young adults with information about where to turn when in trouble, and alerts providers to respond within 45 minutes. This strategy would keep youth/young adults safe by keeping them off streets and diverting them towards family or caring adults or towards short-term shelters or other appropriate interventions. This strategy would require expanded programming and also integration with family reunification, preservation, and crisis coordination programs.

3. DATA COORDINATION

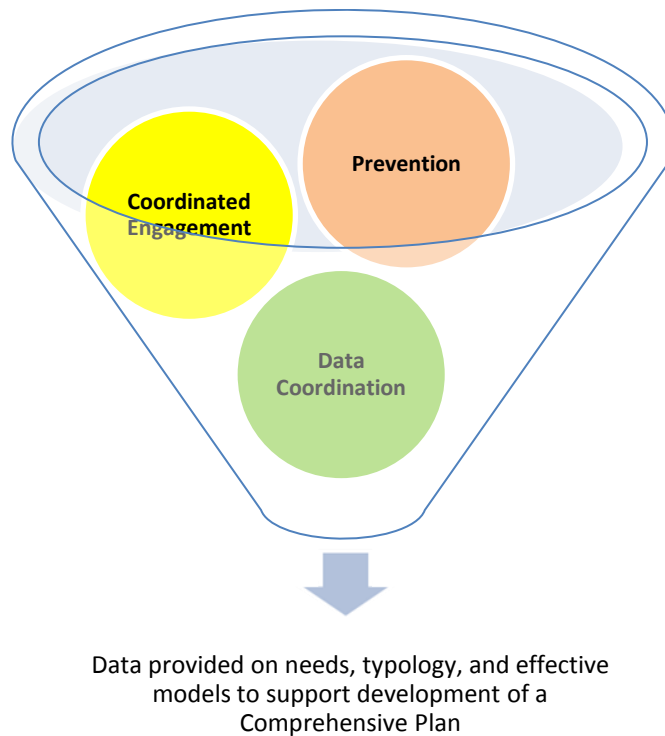

A coordinated system for assessing community progress towards the goal of ending youth/young adult homelessness while supporting providers to coordinate services, measure outcomes, make adjustments, and improve service delivery (Data Coordination strategy). This could be achieved by integrating data outcome reporting processes for multiple funding streams using a single database. Safe Harbors would be utilized to centralize information about clients and programs, allowing for coordinated engagement of youth/young adults.

These strategies have the potential to provide significant impact by:

- Diverting youth/young adults from becoming homeless
- Decreasing the length of time youth/young adults are homeless
- Decreasing the chance that they will return to homelessness

As emphasized in the Introduction to this report, these strategies will not independently end youth/young adult homelessness. They will need to be complemented with investments in housing and services programs in order to be effective. For example, a new coordinated engagement system can effectively provide equal access to housing and services programs for youth/young adults region-wide. However, if there are not enough housing units/beds or services “slots” available to meet the need, all these youth/young adults are getting is equal access to a waiting list.

However, these action steps will provide us with important information that will support the development of a Comprehensive Strategy:

The strategies will provide the system with:

- Data about the true scale of need
- Accurate reporting on youth/young adults’ utilization of housing and services
- Evaluative data about the effectiveness of current interventions
- Feedback from youth/young adult clients to assure quality of programming
- Costs of delivering specific housing and services interventions
- How current funding is or is not aligned toward effective interventions
- The amount of funding required

The following sections describe the three priority strategies in detail, including action steps for implementation.

Section 3 – Summary of Priority Strategies and Costs

Coordinated Engagement Strategy

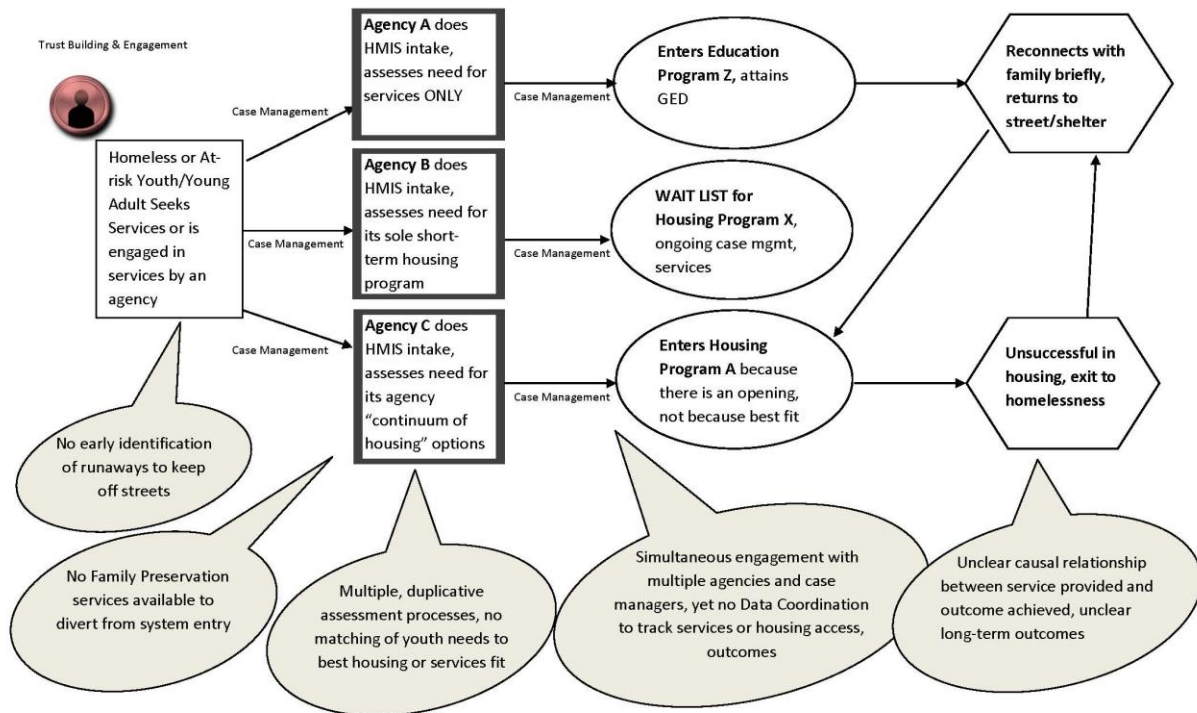

A strategy has been identified for more efficiently utilizing existing housing and services by “centralizing” intake, assessment, and referral decisions. In this new system, which will bridge to the new system of coordinated entry for families, youth/young adults will be assessed using a standardized tool at points throughout the county. Youth/young adults will either be diverted from entry to services or assessed for immediate and longer-term needs and referred to programs that are designed to meet those needs.

Current System of Coordination

Currently, youth/young adults seek and receive services and housing in an unequal, inconsistent way. For example, a young adult who is engaged in services by an outreach worker in Auburn receives a different “menu” of housing and services interventions than a young adult who enters a shelter in Bellevue. There is no process to provide equal access to resources throughout the county, or to match youth/young adults to programs that have proven effectiveness with similar youth/young adults. This isn’t fair to youth/young adults, and it is not efficient for providers or funders.

Here’s a visual explanation of the current system of housing and services coordination:

CURRENT SYSTEM FOR ACCESSING YOUTH HOUSING AND SERVICES

Recommended Coordinated Engagement System

A Coordinated Engagement system is proposed in which youth (under 18) and young adults (up to 25) can be quickly engaged and assessed in order to divert entry to homeless services when other safe options are available or provide the youth/young adult with appropriate levels of housing, employment, or education services. This system can be effective only if there is enough housing and services to serve all youth/young adults in need. While there is an understanding that there are not currently enough resources to meet need, the development and implementation of this model will provide us with tangible data about the type of housing and services the system needs to add or expand.

For those needing housing or services, a two-tiered assessment and referral process will match youth/young adults quickly to the programs that have demonstrated success with clients with similar presenting issues and needs.

Initial engagement will include a short assessment of immediate housing needs and will be available from multiple agencies, at multiple locations, throughout the county. This initial or “tonight” assessment will be easy to administer by existing, trained personnel at shelters, during street outreach and by Safe Place workers. Mainstream family and youth/young adult service providers could also administer the initial assessment.

Opportunities should be provided for youth/young adults to be a part of this stage of coordinated engagement. This could include mentorship by youth/young adults of newly homeless youth/young adults, or by employing youth/young adults to conduct these initial assessments.

A key focus at this stage will be diversion of the young person away from entry to homeless system housing, if possible. This tonight assessment will include diversion questions, such as “can you stay safely with family or others for a short while”, and will include offers of family connection services (through the Family Connection shelter diversion strategy described in next section and existing family preservation, reunification, and crisis coordination services).

If a youth/young adult cannot be reunified with family members or diverted from the homeless system, a comprehensive assessment will be conducted with youth/young adults who are experiencing

The advisory workgroup and Youth/Young Adult Homelessness Task Force developed the following values for its coordinated engagement system:

- Equal access for youth/young adults to housing and services regardless of which door they come through
- Strengths of providers are maximized, thereby strengthening the system
- Formation of strong relationships with youth/young adults
- Focused on improving experience for youth/young adults
- Inclusion of youth/young adults are part of designing, providing feedback, and implementing system
- Privacy for youth and young adults through client consent agreements and funder/provider agreements
- Culturally appropriate and accessible, efficient and respectful processes
- Connect to mainstream services
- Allow for choice (youth and agency) and fluidity but with realistic parameters and expectations

homelessness and are willing to engage in planning their exit from homelessness. Recognizing the importance of the engagement process, youth/young adults should have the opportunity to work with case managers they have built relationships ongoing throughout. However, minimization of the number of service providers or case managers should be a goal of this system.

The comprehensive assessment process will be informed by an inventory of each program's specific requirements, target population, and available beds and services. Diversion of entry into housing and services will be a focus, and youth/young adults will be assessed for eligibility for programs that provide family reunification services (such as existing programs targeting families).

Assessments will be completed by full-time assessors. Research from the National Alliance to End Homelessness⁴ and independent research by Building Changes⁵ of other communities that have implemented coordinated entry models have found this approach to be most effective. This assessor team will require:

- Knowledge of:
 - Crisis intervention
 - Existing homeless housing service providers in each region of King County
 - Diverse needs of youth/young adults from different regions of King County
 - Strength-based assessments and services
- Experience with:
 - Working with diverse populations (cultural, socio-economic, and persons with cognitive, language, and behavioral health challenges)
 - Serving youth and families experiencing and/or at risk of homelessness, including awareness of the impacts of trauma on families
- Ability to:
 - Create a system for documenting and evaluating program effectiveness
 - Partner with a variety of local housing and human service organizations and systems including to support youth/young adults to access mental health, chemical dependency, education (K-12 and post-secondary), workforce development and public benefits
 - Coordinate communications with various stakeholders including funders, housing and service agencies serving families, database staff, and 2-1-1 staff
 - Create a transparent process that builds trust and reduces conflicts of interest

Additionally, research indicates the importance of centralizing assessor staff at a single agency. This agency, and its assessor staff, must be objective and transparent, and continually communicate with providers and funders to build trust. The integrity of the referral process, in particular, must be strong, and conflicts of interest must be addressed and negotiated. A process of reviewing referrals and continually improving the process should be collaborative with other providers. The assessors should be both site-based and rove throughout the community to conduct assessments.

This agency would also provide capacity building training to other providers throughout the county on the coordinated engagement model, particularly the assessment tools and referral processes. Assessor staff will make referrals to housing and services providers utilizing a centralized database of housing/bed accessibility and services inventory and centralized electronic case management with “real-time” information about availability of housing/services and clients’ history in accessing system resources.

Client data collection should be coordinated through the Homeless Management and Information System (Safe Harbors) and formalized interagency collaboration. Data from the initial assessments will be entered into HMIS if at a homeless housing and services agency. All data from the comprehensive assessments will be entered into HMIS. Agencies will be able to review client case files across agencies and will meet regularly to review and improve processes and practices.

Here’s a visual representation of the proposed coordinated engagement model:

The model proposed by the Task Force and community members largely parallels the model that will be implemented in April 2012 for homeless families. The homeless families coordinated entry system, funded by King County and the Washington Families Fund, and operated by Catholic Community Services, will also provide two tiers of assessment, use of roving and site-based assessors, and client data sharing and coordination. The system-level compatibility of the two models will allow for integration of assessments and referrals. Compatibility with the chronically homeless intake system, Client Care Coordination, will also be important.

The benefits of a unified coordinated entry system in King County are twofold. First, to promote equal access to housing and services, regardless of which population(s) one fits into and how an individual becomes engaged or enters into the homeless system. Second, that people who fit into two or more homeless populations experience a seamless process of getting matched with the right resources. For example, former foster youth who are pregnant and/or already a parent may be eligible for family programs and young adult programs, and young adults who are chronically homeless may be eligible for young adult programs and those targeted to chronically homeless adults.

Finally, systems coordination is increasingly encouraged and required at the federal and state level. The Federal Homeless Assistance and Rapid Transition to Housing (HEARTH) Act require HUD to measure performance across the homeless system as a whole⁶. In Washington State, the Department of Commerce is requiring all Consolidated Homeless Grant Leads and Sub Grantees to have a coordinated entry system in place by 12/31/14.⁷

Anticipated Costs:

- Annual cost of operations of approximately $250,000⁸
 - Staffing (coordination lead, 2-3 assessors, benefits)
 - Capacity building of providers (assessment trainings, communications plan, provider coordination, cross-training with family/adult assessors)
 - Database development, maintenance, training
 - Evaluation and analysis (evaluation plan, reporting, analysis)
 - Operating costs (rent, facilities)
- Leverage: undetermined, but potentially significant if aligned with families model

⁸ Actual costs will need to be determined by funders in coordination with implementer agency. The costs reflected above should be seen as a minimum number, and not necessarily the true costs of what is needed to successfully implement the key priority items.

Prevention Strategies

Two prevention strategies have been identified: (A) Family Connection Services will divert youth/young adults from entering shelter through consultation and counseling with parents and youth/young adults. (B) Early Intervention and Engagement for Runaways will quickly provide runaway youth with a safe place to stay, keeping them off the streets in the short term, while developing a plan for re-engagement with family or other caring adults or entry into a housing program.

There are few prevention strategies in King County aimed specifically at preventing youth and young adults from becoming homeless, or strategies to divert entry into the homeless and housing services. As a result, there were many strategies considered for prioritization for funding. These strategies included helping runaways to reconnect with families, supporting school districts to connect students and families to resources, to improving the process of planning for foster care graduation, and increasing community awareness about safe places for youth to go in crisis. Therefore, while the Task Force recommended Family Connection and Early Identification of Runaways as the two priority prevention programs to fund, they also recommended that three additional prevention approaches be developed and funded in a second phase. These strategies are summarized in an Appendix, and included:

- Housing preparation, planning and assistance for high-need foster youth
- Housing stability services for foster youth (Mockingbird Family Model)
- Early identification and resource referral in schools

Recommended Prevention Strategies

2A. Family Connection Services

To prevent youth/young adults from becoming homeless, a strategy is proposed that would focus on supporting youth/young adults to remain in or quickly reunify with their family, which could include parents, extended family, or other caring adults. Services would be provided at shelter and through outreach services to youth under 18 and young adults 18-25 at the point of initial assessment (as described in the Coordinated Engagement strategy), with the intention of diverting their entry into homeless programs. This model serves parents and caretakers of youth/young adults who are currently, or may be in the future, at risk of homelessness due to a range of behaviors.

Services for families in crisis are already available in King County. Through coordinated engagement, youth/young adults and families in crisis that intersect with the homeless youth/young adults services system will be referred to these family reunification, preservation, and crisis coordination services. Such services are offered through family and youth services, mental health crisis services, refugee and immigrant services, child welfare services, and juvenile justice services. Implementing this model would compliment, not duplicate, these existing programs. While this strategy recommends the development of a program specifically for homeless youth/young adults to be “offered” at the point of engagement with a provider, these services should continue to be made available to youth/young adults and their families while youth/young adults are engaged in services or housing.

This strategy would specifically target youth/young adults and families who are at the breaking point and will give providers a tool to prevent youth/young adults from entering the homeless system. For example, when a parent calls a shelter to say they plan to bring their child to the shelter, or when a youth/young adults arrives at the shelter, staff would quickly engage them in a discussion aimed at diverting the youth/young adults from entering shelter. These services would also be available pre-crisis, to assist parents and youth/young adults to address problematic behaviors as early as possible.

In the model envisioned, parents/caretakers who are concerned about their teen can call and speak with a Masters-level therapist who provides consultation and links to various resources in the community. Services for parents include phone consultation and in-home family counseling with a Master's level therapist, psycho-educational parenting classes for parents, facilitated parent support groups, seminars for parents and teens, targeted outreach to specific communities, and program evaluation.

A local, successful example of this model is operated by Cocoon House (in Everett, WA). Their program is called Project Safe. Cocoon House has been collaborating with King County providers for years. They could be engaged to staff or train the implementation of this strategy in King County. It will be important to stage the introduction of these services into King County and evaluate, as the effectiveness of Cocoon House's model has been tested only in Snohomish County, which is less urban and less culturally diverse than King County.

This pilot should be hosted by an existing provider from the community with solid relationships with both mainstream youth/young adults and family services and homeless youth/ young adults housing providers. Existing Youth and Family Services providers are serving homeless youth/young adults and their families, and are providing family preservation and connection services. They have great potential and capacity to develop and implement this strategy quickly. In addition, these services should be adapted for youth/young adults and their families of color in South Seattle. Staff will need cultural and community competencies and to develop the services, referral networks and relationships with school and law enforcement.

Anticipated Costs:

- Annual cost of operations of approximately $225,000 at county-wide scale⁹
 - Staffing and indirect (Therapist, clinical supervision, coordination)
 - Capacity building for partner agencies
 - Training/Tools
 - Evaluation and Analysis (evaluation plan, reporting, analysis)
 - Operating Costs (rent, facilities)
- Leverage: undetermined

⁹ Actual costs will need to be determined by funders in coordination with implementer agency(ies). The costs reflected above should be seen as a minimum number, and not necessarily the true costs of what is needed to successfully implement the key priority items.

2B. Early Intervention and Engagement for Runaways

To quickly provide runaway youth under 18 with a safe place to stay, keeping them off the streets in the short term, while developing a plan for re-engagement with family or other caring adults or entry into a housing program. This program targets youth in crisis, who have runaway or been kicked out of their home, by extending the doors of the youth emergency shelter or youth service agency throughout the community. Through extensive education and marketing, youth know where to turn in crisis.

The key outcome of this program is preventing youth from the dangers of street life by quickly responding to a youth when they first become homeless, and quickly assessing them and helping them find a safe place to stay. Youth are easily able to access immediate help wherever they are. This strategy involves the whole community to provide safe havens and resources for youth in crisis.

This program would adapt an existing model, Safe Place, which is operated by National Safe Place. It includes the creation of a network of "Safe Place locations" – youth-friendly businesses, transit, schools, fire stations, libraries, YMCAs and other appropriate public institutions. These locations would display a distinctive yellow and black Safe Place sign, and staff at these locations would be trained to immediately call the local Safe Place lead agency, a youth/young adult homeless services provider.

Through extensive outreach to schools, the program also educates thousands of young people every year about the dangers of running away or trying to resolve difficult, threatening situations on their own. Schools are an important ally for these programs, and providers will need to work with individual districts and schools to build this program. Many providers, especially Youth and Family Services providers, have long-standing formal relationships with schools to build upon. During school programming, youth are educated about the program, told where Safe Places are located in their community, and presented with the local Safe Place phone number. In addition to going to Safe Place locations, youth can text or call that number to identify as in need of assistance.

Staff would respond and arrive wherever the youth was located within 45 minutes and quickly assess his/her needs and provide immediate support. Safe Place staff will arrive to talk with the youth and transport him or her to the host agency for counseling, support, a place to stay or other resources. Once at the agency, counselors meet with the youth and provide support, resources and help. They make sure the youth and their families receive the help and professional referrals they need. (Family members or guardians are called to let them know that their youth is safe.) The youth serving agency helps the youth and the family through a difficult time or crisis situation through counseling and support services.

In addition to diverting youth from homelessness, reducing shelter stays, and working with youth and families to support family reconciliation, this program, in tandem with the coordinated engagement strategy, would maximize utilization and occupancy of shelters and other programs.

This model is currently in development, led by YouthCare (licensing partner with National Safe Place), Auburn Youth Resources, Friends of Youth, YMCA, King County Metro, and King County and Seattle Public Libraries.

Anticipated Costs:

- Annual cost of operations of approximately $200,000 at county-wide scale¹⁰
 - Staffing and indirect (coordination, regional staffing)
 - Capacity building for partner agencies
 - Transportation costs (to pick up youth)
 - Outreach, marketing, and training to providers, schools, etc.
 - National Safe Place licensing fees and materials
- Leverage: undetermined

¹⁰ Actual costs will need to be determined by funders in coordination with implementer agency(ies). This program is partially in place currently in King County. However, funding is not secured beyond 2012. The costs reflected above should be seen as a minimum number, and not necessarily the true costs of what is needed to successfully implement the key priority items.

Data Coordination

A strategy has been identified to improve data coordination among youth/young adult providers and improve our community's ability to assess progress towards a goal of ending youth/young adult homelessness. The data coordination approach would build on existing data collection and reporting structures, most significantly the Homeless Management and Information System (Safe Harbors).

Current Data Coordination

Currently, data coordination is not effective for providers, youth, or funders.

Providers don't like it because

- Each case manager/provider must enter data for HMIS and multiple other funders
- Providers spend too much time entering data due to funder requirements

Youth/young adults don't like it because

- They are asked for the same personal information over and over, which can be traumatizing for the youth/young adult
- They aren't directed to programs that are proven to help clients similar to them

Funders don't like it because

- The data is sent in different directions to various funders, and not analyzed system wide
- As a system, we can't tell if our $$ is making a difference

Ultimately, our current data coordination systems are not effective because as a community we are not able to answer the three key questions outlined at the beginning of this report:

- What's the need? How many youth/young adults are homeless?
- What works to address it? Which housing or service interventions are most effective at ending homelessness for youth/young adults of diverse needs and circumstances?
- Are we making progress? As a community, are we reducing the number of youth/young adults who become homeless, the length of time they are homeless, and reducing return episodes of homelessness?

Recommended Future Data Coordination System

A strategy has been developed to ensure that our community is collecting and analyzing data that demonstrates whether we are effective and efficient in our efforts to prevent and end youth/young adult homelessness.

The goals of this approach are to:

1. Match services to client's needs (through standardized assessment, coordinated case management and frequent analysis at the client level)
2. Support continuous improvement (through evaluation and analysis at the program level);
3. Assess community progress toward shared outcomes (through data sharing and analysis at the systems level)

The chart above describes the data coordination system that is envisioned for King County homeless youth/young adults. While this vision was agreed to during this planning process, much work remains to plan and implement this system. However, during this phase, providers and funders agreed to a set of shared outcomes that would tell our community whether we were meeting our goal of ending youth/young adult homelessness. There is broad agreement that shared outcomes should have a focus on both housing stability and youth resiliency. These shared outcomes would align with federal funding requirements (HUD homeless programs and HHS Runaway/Homeless Youth Act). They would include the following community-wide measures:

- Prevention of youth/young adults homelessness
- Reductions in length of stay of homeless youth/young adults in services
- Reductions in return episodes of homelessness
- Increased positive employment, education, health and wellbeing outcomes while in services/housing.

To effectively implement the proposed coordinated engagement model, providers will require frequently updated data about clients and a real-time inventory of available resources. Client confidentiality will need to be addressed via consent documentation, and compliance with federal and state laws, including the Washington State Becca Bill¹¹ and federal HIPAA¹² guidelines will need to be ensured.

Integrated data outcome reporting processes for multiple funding streams into a single database will support assessment of effectiveness in serving youth/young adults through the new coordinated engagement system. These would include federal housing and services programs (notably at HUD and HHS), local, state, and private funding sources. Overall, provider data entry and reporting requirements will be minimized, and they will be able to improve the matching of services to need. Funders will have access to reports from a data system that can provide evaluative data about the scope of need and the effectiveness of various interventions.

Incremental steps towards this vision have been taken by providers and funders in the past year. For example, Friends of Youth and YouthCare are investing in integrating their internal databases. The YouthCare project, for example, is integrating their data reporting for their various funding source. Through this database they will be able to export data to Safe Harbors, which is administered by the City of Seattle. At the public funder level, the City of Seattle and King County have worked to enhance the Homeless Management and Information System (Safe Harbors) for the homeless families coordinated entry system. These are leverage points to be built upon during the next phase of planning and will require strong coordination and leadership among funders and providers.

Combined, the improvements to data coordination and coordinated engagement will support CEHKC, funders, and providers to develop its comprehensive strategy to preventing and ending youth/young adult homelessness. Implementation of these strategies will provide the system with important information:

- Data about the true scale of need
- Accurate reporting on youth/young adults' utilization of housing and services
- Evaluative data about the effectiveness of current interventions
- Feedback from youth/young adult clients to assure quality of programming
- Costs of delivering specific housing and services interventions
- How current funding is or is not aligned toward effective interventions
- The amount of funding required

Anticipated Costs:

- Annual cost of operations of approximately $275,000 at county-wide scale¹³
 - Staffing (data manager, data entry, coordination)
 - Per provider fees, such as data mapping, paid to software vendor
 - Per provider maintenance fees paid to software vendor
- Leverage: undetermined, but substantial (Safe Harbors, Gates grants to King County)

¹³ Actual costs will need to be determined by funders in coordination with implementer agency(ies). The costs reflected above should be seen as a minimum number, and not necessarily the true costs of what is needed to successfully implement the key priority items.

Section 4 – Action Plan: Implementation Staging and Structure

The strategies identified in the previous sections have been developed simultaneously and are complimentary. Implemented together, they will make a significant impact, effectively changing King County’s fragmented collection of homeless youth/young adults programs and services into a coordinated, efficient system for preventing and ending youth/young adult homelessness.

While developing the strategies summarized in the previous section, the Homeless Youth and Young Adult Task Force also advised on an action plan for staging and sequencing the implementation of these strategies. Detailed action steps for each priority strategy are outlined in an Appendix.

The following is a presentation about the planning and implementation structure and leadership required to carry out this plan.

Implementation Structure

Implementation of this strategic plan will require staffing and governance to both facilitate the system change and provide continuing system wide oversight of the implementation.

Implementation of these strategies on an aggressive timeline will require strong governance, staffing, collaboration and shared accountability within the homelessness system by both funders and providers, as well as with related outside stakeholders. Additionally, providers will need assistance, both technical and financial, to support their ability to implement policy and practice changes.

An implementation structure must be developed to support the development of both the short-term priorities and the comprehensive strategy outlined in this report, and King County’s homeless services system has much of the infrastructure already in place to support a “collective impact” approach to ending youth/young adult homelessness. CEHKC, its Governing Board and Interagency Council, and the Combined Homeless Funders Group provide leadership for all homeless populations. In addition, the ad hoc Youth/Young Adult Homeless Funders

Research on the concept of collective impact provides a framework for how the implementation of these short-term priorities and subsequent action steps could be structured. The following is an excerpt from a Stanford Social Innovations Review article by John Kania and Mark Kramer, called “Collective Impact”:

An alternative approach is organizing for collective impact, the commitment of a group of important actors from different sectors to a common agenda for solving a specific social problem. Unlike most collaborations, successful collective impact initiatives typically have five conditions that together produce true alignment and lead to powerful results:

- A common agenda that speaks to improving community response to youth/young adult homelessness
- Shared measurement systems that not only track housing stability and resiliency but also link that progress to performance improvements of the systems
- Mutually reinforcing activities not only among providers on the front lines, but also among related coalitions and their decision makers working on everything from family homelessness to juvenile justice
- Continuous communication within and across all levels of the infrastructure and out to the public
- Backbone supports organized in a way that ensures the success of the whole even when the support functions are spread across several entities

Group and Task Force are providing an important developmental function in launching and guiding the development of a few high-priority short-term strategies. It will be necessary to continue to convene an advisory group to guide implementation of these priorities, review data about need and effectiveness of interventions, and guide the development of a comprehensive strategy for ending youth/young adult homelessness.

The following functions are envisioned to implement the short-term priorities, conduct long-term planning, and ensure sustained progress towards the goal of ending youth/young adult homelessness.

The following are outcomes to be anticipated and action steps recommended for implementation of the 3 priority strategies. Further detail about the action steps required for each of the 3 priority strategies is provided in an Appendix.

Phase I: 2012-2013

Outcomes:

1. Coordinated Engagement system implemented and aligned with families model
2. Prevention programs implemented, increased family reunification, shelter diversion
3. Data Coordination implemented, City producing reports on need, youth providers have real time case and inventory information
4. Reductions shown in key outcomes (length of homelessness, shelter diversions, recidivism)
5. Comprehensive YYA Plan Developed, including realistic estimate of need, data on program effectiveness, and new goals for types of YYA housing production

Action Steps

- Funding 3 Priority Strategies
 - Identify funders and funding amounts for each strategy
 - Develop funding pooling or alignment process to ensure coordinated funding towards these strategies and shared outcomes
 - Develop RFPs for short-term priority strategies
 - Review and select grantees for each priority strategy

- Develop and implement coordinated engagement strategy with agency selected as lead implementer and Task Force
- City and providers work to launch data platforms required to support coordinated engagement strategy. This includes client case management functions, housing inventory, and program/eligibility information that could be regularly updated by each provider.
- Prevention strategy lead agencies implement programs and integrate services with other prevention strategies, including family preservation, reunification, and crisis coordination.
- Support (by staffing meetings, developing communications, etc) CEHKC, Youth and Young Adult Homeless Funders Group and Task Force as they guide the implementation of these strategies
- Start Longer-Term Planning
 - Plan the transition of the funding of the coordinated engagement strategy from private funding towards public sources.
- Capacity Building
 - Build the capacity of agencies to successfully implement priority strategies
- Evaluation
 - Develop and implement evaluation plans for the new strategies
 - Monitor data, provide analysis and reports, and communicate shared outcomes broadly
 - Lead efforts with State, County, and private funders to align funding outcomes and share data across programs and systems
- Advocacy
 - Education/advocacy at federal, state, and local levels to address administrative and legislative barriers to implementation of strategies
 - Communications to build public and political will to prevent and end youth/young adults homelessness
 - Coordinate with advocates and allies within related systems, including schools, child welfare, juvenile justice, Youth and Family Services, and community groups.

Phase II: 2013-2014

Outcomes:

1. Comprehensive plan developed and funding plans developed for implementation
2. Sustainable funding plan for 3 priority strategies is developed
3. Data sharing agreements reached across systems
4. Provider capacity built to support priority strategies

Action Steps:

- Longer-Term Planning
 - Develop comprehensive strategies for ending youth/young adults homelessness, utilizing outcomes from implementation of short-term priorities, which will include:
 - Number of youth and young adults homeless, for how long, and repeated episodes

- Effectiveness of current interventions in preventing and reducing homelessness and increasing the resiliency of youth
 - Costs per interventions
 - How current funding is or is not aligned with effective interventions
 - The amount of funding required to meet shared outcomes
 - Further align funding and processes toward shared goals
 - Review funding sources, restrictions for programs serving homeless youth/young adults and within other systems to better serve homeless youth to identify funds that can support the three priority strategies
 - Ensure integration of youth/young adults homeless services with mainstream services so that:
 - Providers outside the homeless system can appropriately refer homeless youth/young adults
 - Homeless providers can transition youth/young adults that are no longer appropriately served within the system to free up capacity to serve those most in need
- Capacity Building
 - Support providers through capacity building on prevention strategies, especially family connections, preservation and reunification
 - Support providers through capacity building on data reporting, integrity
 - Support providers to communicate and continually improve coordinated engagement system
- Evaluation
 - Lead efforts to align funding outcomes and share data across programs and systems
 - Monitor data, provide analysis and reports, and communicate shared outcomes broadly
- Advocacy
 - Education/advocacy at federal, state, and local levels to address administrative and legislative barriers to implementation of strategies
 - Communications to build public and political will to prevent and end youth/young adults homelessness
 - Coordinate with advocates and allies within related systems, including schools, child welfare, juvenile justice, Youth and Family Services, and community groups.

Anticipated Costs

- Annual cost of operations of approximately $300,000 at county-wide scale¹⁴
 - Staffing (grantmaking, planning, capacity building, advocacy)
 - Evaluation (external or staffing)
- Leverage: undetermined

¹⁴ Actual costs will need to be determined by funders in coordination with implementer agency(ies). The costs reflected above should be seen as a minimum number, and not necessarily the true costs of what is needed to successfully implement the key priority items.

Section 5 – Conclusions and Recommendations for Long-Term Planning

Over the course of the past 6 months, significant progress has been made towards building a stronger, community-level response to youth/young adult homelessness. Funders and providers have worked collaboratively and iteratively to develop and propose a more effective, coordinated regional response to youth/young adult homelessness. As a result, there is significant momentum in place to implement the three priority strategies. Providers have already begun taking the initiative to improve service coordination. Funders are meeting regularly to improve their coordination as well. All involved feel an urgency to make the systems enhancements outlined in this plan because youth/young adults continue to live on our streets or in unsafe or unsanitary conditions.

Much work remains to be done to implement these strategies, and to develop and implement a long-term plan. Discussions are currently underway to determine the implementation structure for these three priorities. As described in Section 4, funders, providers and CEHKC must commit to engaging in long-term planning as soon as possible, and commit to utilizing the improved data produced by implementing these priority strategies to develop the comprehensive plan. The plan must be a data-driven plan, utilizing the information gathered upon implementation of the three priority strategies to recommend:

- The scale of housing and services interventions to meet need
- The type of housing and services interventions that are most effective
- The variances in interventions required to address needs of youth/young adults in each region of the county
- The variances in interventions required to address needs of youth/young adults, including LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, questioning) youth, youth of color, immigrant/refugee youth, youth exiting the child welfare system, and youth exiting the juvenile justice system.
- Strategies for integrating service delivery and data collection across systems, including mental health, chemical dependency, juvenile justice, schools, and child welfare.

Funders and providers must build on the momentum built up during this planning process to continue to collaborate and make strategic decisions about program funding. Established programs and approaches that are showing promising outcomes and addressing high need populations or regions should be expanded. Emerging programs and approaches should be tested with rigorous evaluations that contribute information to the community and to the field at a national level.

With the implementation of these action steps, and subsequent development and implementation of a data-driven comprehensive plan, this community will be more efficiently utilizing its resources to support youth/young adults and their families to stabilize and grow. The promise we will be able to deliver on as a community of providers, advocates, and funders is to, once and for all, end youth/young adult homelessness in King County.

Appendix 1: Coordinated Engagement Strategy Action Steps

Phase I: Planning and Preparation (2012-2013)

Coordinate Engagement Program Development Steps

- Select a Coordinated Engagement lead agency
- That agency will hire a Coordinated Engagement Manager, who will guide the implementation of the following action steps in a coordinated fashion with funders and CEHKC):
 - Finalize design of elements of coordinated engagement
 - Mapping of existing intake/referral process and housing and services inventory (each agency catalogues their services, eligibility criteria, etc)
 - Establish a uniform screening and assessment tool to gather information about a youth/young adult and their housing and service needs
 - Create and adopt a needs scale or typology
 - Develop a placement methodology for referrals to most appropriate housing and services provider based on need
 - Conduct focus groups with youth/young adults to test
 - Hire and train comprehensive assessors skilled in conducting assessments
 - Implement training for intake staff (initial assessors) and further capacity building to providers
 - Cross-train youth/young adult assessors and family assessors
 - Evaluation elements developed – including length of stay, especially in shelter, New entries in to homelessness, Repeat episodes of homelessness

Phase II: Implementation of Strategies (2013)

Coordinated Engagement Program Implementation Steps

- Start with a small number of agencies with initial assessments
- Include all youth/young adult housing inventories
- Start with small number of intakes/ assessments and expect longer wait times at first between initial assessments and comprehensive assessment
- Identify entry points doing assessments now (including non homeless youth/young adult providers especially in South Seattle and non-urban locations)
- Identify next tier of agencies, population, and services to begin initial assessments, focus on providers/interventions for those not identifying as homeless
- Analyze and scale up/down FTEs for comprehensive assessments as needed
- Refine assessment tools, processes, and coordination methods
- Evaluation – collect, analyze, and discuss data, and adapt model

Phase III: Operation and Maintenance (2014-2016)

Coordinate Engagement Program Implementation Steps

- Analyze and scale up/down FTEs for comprehensive assessments as needed
- Refine assessment tools, processes, and coordination methods
- Evaluation – collect, analyze, and discuss data, and adapt model

Appendix 2: Prevention Strategy Action Steps

Phase I: Planning and Preparation (2012-2013)

Prevention Programs Development Steps

- Select Prevention Program implementation agencies via RFP
- That agency will hire Prevention Program Manager, who will guide the implementation of the following action steps in a coordinated fashion with lead funders and CEHKC):
 - For Early Intervention for Runaways model:
 - Agency(ies) hire new staff for outreach, education, and response (2 new staff, could be at one agency or at two, but must reach throughout the County)
 - Expand Safe Place locations to include providers of mainstream youth and family services throughout county, with emphasis on areas of high need and limited services knowledge or availability (South Seattle and non-urban areas)
 - Educate community about Safe Places, including at schools and particularly in areas of high need and limited services knowledge or availability (South Seattle and non-urban areas)
 - Train staff on Coordinated Engagement approach and as “initial assessors”
 - Expand service delivery county-wide
 - For Family Connection Services model:
 - Lead agency(ies) collaborate with Cocoon House in developing the first phase of the project
 - Cocoon House is supported to work with King County providers
 - Hire staff to provide services
 - Develop protocol and plan for clinical supervision
 - Develop capacity building tools for use in expanding model to more agencies
 - Train all provider staff about how to engage youth/young adults and parents at shelter or outreach in a discussion about family connection services
 - Begin providing services to youth/young adults and parents at shelter or outreach

Phase II: Implementation of Strategies (2013)

Prevention Programs Implementation Steps

- Expansion of Early Intervention for Runaways model
 - Ongoing services, education, and marketing
- Expansion of Family Connection Services model
 - Ongoing services, expansion to additional system entry points
 - Provide capacity building services to providers at shelter and outreach and at other community locations (at all “initial assessment” locations)

Phase III: Operation and Maintenance (2014-2016)

Prevention Programs Implementation Steps

- Analyze and scale up/down FTEs for comprehensive assessments as needed
- Refine assessment tools, processes, and coordination methods

- Assess resources needed to provide alternative to shelter if full or not appropriate for Early Intervention for Runaways
- Develop the secondary priority approaches and seek funding (listed below):

	#3 Housing Prep, Planning and Assistance for High- need Foster Youth	#4 Stability for Foster Youth	#5 Early Identification and Resource Referral in Schools
Model Description	Develop housing plan with families/youth before transition Target youth most in need/most likely to become homeless Life skills training to prepare youth for renting and independent living Housing assistance with tailored supports	Constellations of families live in close proximity to hub home family (licensed) Systems navigating Peer support for children and parents Impromptu and regularly scheduled social activities Planned respite nearly 24/7, and crisis respite as needed	Schools as hub for identification of homeless youth, and referral for services Navigator at ESD or individual districts to improve identification of homeless and at-risk students Trainings to schools and providers (homeless youth as trainers) Data tracking across schools and providers
Currently Operational	Similar housing programs for exist through IYH and Foster-to-21	This is Mockingbird Family Model; several exist in King County, not currently at scale	McKinney-Vento homeless school liaisons in place in all districts but rarely at scale

Appendix 3: Data Coordination Strategy Action Steps

Phase I: Planning and Preparation (2012-2013)

Data Coordination Development Steps

- Determine new data system ownership and fiscal and management responsibilities
- Agree upon shared community goals and outcomes for new strategies
- Develop Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) and agreed upon framework for Information Sharing Agreements/Common Consents and Management Processes for the youth/young adult system
- Develop data reports to track housing and services utilization
- Develop database infrastructure to support funder reporting requirements, new assessments and referral tools and processes for both engagement and housing and services
- Design intentional methods to acquire youth/young adult input and responses to services received
- Coordinate data needs for support of evaluation activities
- Provide extensive training on tools, assessments, consents and the Coordinated Engagement system intake/exit processes to ensure data consistency and understanding of data collection protocols
- Finish build out of database across agencies including training, equipment and software compatibility and supports.

Phase II: Implementation of Strategies (2013)

Data Coordination Implementation Steps

- Execute MOU's, Information Sharing Agreements, Common Consents to support implementation of Coordinated Engagement system
- Convene providers for management meetings and to develop management processes, tools and report out methods to Funders, CEHKC, and Taskforce
- Test data tools, assessments and processes, including reviews of training and data system error reports to adjust system functions as needed to eliminate errors and ensure consistency of services and data collection
- Survey provider staff and youth/young adult clients to identify level of implementation satisfaction and input on quality and level of burden of data collection methods
- Provide community level reports on youth/young adults in services, demographics and service and housing utilizations for review and improvements
- Examine data systems budget, resources to determine if program needs more or less resources

Phase III: Operation and Maintenance (2014-2016)

Data Coordination Implementation Steps

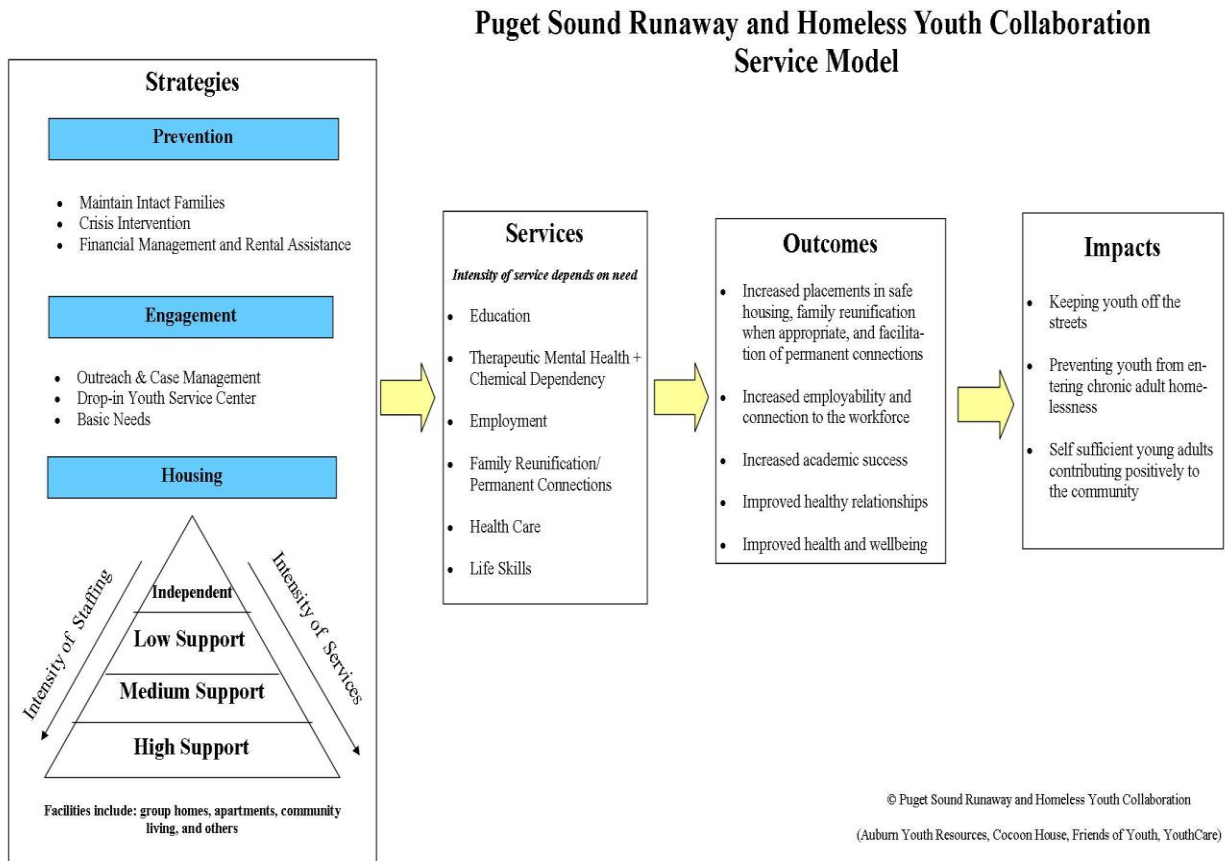

- Develop provider management input methods to funders regarding housing and service needs/recommendations to funding strategies and funding processes (RFPs) making them data driven
- Develop annual community reporting and raise public awareness based on data reports and begin trending data and outcomes
- Develop comparative assessments of community-wide outcomes and program outcomes from baseline (2011) to current
- Implement processes for using community level data for support of funding opportunities and joint applications
- Evolve processes for Continuous Process Improvement (CPI) and youth/young adult involvement and input to improve services and understanding of youth/young adults needs.
- Integration of data from other systems

Prevention	Increase access to emergency financial assistance and access to landlord liaison services for young adults	Provide family reconciliation services (similar to Cocoon House)	Runaway youth should have access to family reunification services
Outreach/case management	Improve access to information about programs and current availability	Expand outreach and case management especially in east and south KC	Expand engagement services especially in south KC
Housing	Establishment of a complete housing continuum for each region Priorities by region: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • East/North County: stable housing, emergency shelter and drop in center • Seattle: stable housing (especially for young adults with high level service needs); interim housing • South County: stable housing 	Expand housing, particularly non time limited housing for young adults in south KC Assess need for shelter	Housing at all levels but particularly for safe, low barrier shelter with comprehensive assessment services for youth under age 18
Support Services	Access to primary health care, dental care, and mental health and chemical dependency treatment Additional outreach in South KC	Expand legal services	Access to integrated behavioral health services (recently has funded a best practice approach to provide supportive services – Groundwork Project)
Education and employment training	Increase funds for training with focus on post secondary credential building programs	Expand existing education and employment training programs	Services for homeless youth to develop independent living skills

Recommendations - Systems	A Plan to End Young Adult Homelessness in King County (Building Changes, 2008)	Investments to Reduce Youth and Young Adult Homelessness in King County (Heliotrope, 2010)	United Way of King County: Homeless Youth Initiative (2009)
Working with other systems to prevent youth homelessness: foster care, juvenile justice, school districts	Meet with and develop plan to improve coordination with school districts Meet with and develop plan to improve coordination and ensure housing placements for youth exiting foster care and criminal justice systems	Advocate for policies to proactively house young people who are leaving other systems like foster care and juvenile justice systems	Coordinate the prevention of runaways and youth homelessness
Better data and homeless point-in-time count	Develop regular mechanism for counting homeless youth and young adults		United Way working closely with Teen Feed and others on the May 25 count
Coordinated system: coordinated assessment, outcome planning and tracking	Develop common assessment tool	Establish coordinated outcome planning and track outcomes	Coordinate intervention when youth run away or become homeless
Advocacy	Advocate for extending eligibility of young adults for Medicaid/CHIP coverage up to age 23	Better connect homeless young adults to more existing adult funding streams and services

Purpose Statement

The Youth and Young Adult funders group will guide, oversee and evaluate recommendations coming from the Youth and Young Adult task force. The goal of this group is to ensure that work from the task force is evaluated from a funding implementation lens throughout the process.

The process that United Way is leading on behalf of the Committee to End Homelessness will focus on System Transformation or realigning the historic model of homeless service delivery for youth and young adults to one that promotes prevention and rapid re-housing with appropriate levels of services and housing supports needed by the population.

The ultimate goal of this group is to approve and endorse the “Blue Print for Action” to address youth and young adult homelessness in King County.

Roles & Responsibilities

The roles and responsibilities of funders who are members of this group are as follows:

1. Set the direction of the priority areas that the task force members will address as they create a “Blue Print for Action” to address youth and young adult homelessness.
2. Commit to attending regular meetings of the Funders Group, in order to get updated on the progress of the work (meetings will not be more than 1x/month and more likely once every 6 weeks until March, 2012)
3. Consider taking a more active role in at least one of the priority areas, which would involve additional meetings during this 6-7 month period (from September 2011 to March 2012) to be further engaged in the creation of the “Blue Print for Action”.

4. Review and evaluate the progress, deliverables, and priority recommendations from the task force as they become available.
5. Provide feedback to task force members to ensure end product will have the ability to be implemented in the short and long term in King County.
6. Commit to making the meetings of this funders group a priority.
7. Approve and endorse the “Blue Print for Action” to address youth and young adult homelessness that will come out of the work of the aligned task force.
8. Consider aligning existing and investing new resources or using their voice to advocate for others to fund priorities identified in this process.

Date Established/Projected Completion Date

Established: September 2011

Completion: April 2012

Meeting Frequency

The funders group will meet no more than 1x/month and more likely once every month through April 2012.

Purpose/Charter Statement:

This task force will develop an operating system and recommendations on implementation strategies focused on ending youth and young adult homelessness in King County. The end product will be worked through in conjunction with an aligned and targeted funders group for early screening and discussion. Review and feedback will be routed through IAC before final approval by the CEH Funders Group.

Tasks/Strategies

The anticipated outcomes / work products arising from this task force are:

9. Consensus around an operating system, it's components and areas of focus that are needed to prevent and end youth and young adult homelessness
10. Identification of areas needed to be developed/improved/alterd in the community to have the service delivery system in King County mirror the operating system being recommended.
11. Recommendations regarding what resources need to be invested or reallocated and where the priorities should be within the operating system. Recommendations would include: Funding needed; Organizational Infrastructure to carry out tasks; Timeline with which to implement recommendations

Established: July/August 2011

Completion: April 2012

Documentation Expected from the Task force

- Operating System Blue Print
- Investment Strategy Aligned with Operating System and focused on priorities areas
- Timeline & process for recommended investments

Meeting Frequency

Meet once to twice a month for 3 – 4months. Each meeting will be 2 hrs long

Recommendations and Reporting

This task force will develop an operating system and recommendations on implementation strategies focused on ending youth and young adult homelessness in King County. The end product will be worked through in conjunction with an aligned and targeted funders group for early screening and discussion. Review and feedback will be routed through IAC before final approval by the CEH Funders Group.

Advisory Pool Workgroups:

Workgroups were formed to develop and refine the three priority strategies. Each of these workgroups met at least 4 times and contributed tremendously to the strategies and action plans included in this report.
