Archon Henry McGee Receives Clyde Ferguson Award for Distinguished Career

Archon Henry W. McGee, Jr of Alpha Omicron (Seattle) was awarded the Clyde Ferguson award by the Association of American Law Schools for “excellence in public service, teaching, scholarship and mentoring. Archon McGee is Professor of Law at Seattle University, and Professor Emeritus, University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA).

Professor McGee was the first African American to teach at Ohio State University (1967), and one of two firsts at UCLA (1969). He was also the first tenured African American at Seattle University School of Law, a Jesuit institution.

Professor McGee’s father, Henry W. McGee, was the first African American Postmaster of a major facility when he was appointed by President Johnson. Postmaster McGee was a member of the Chicago Boule chapter, and later was a founder of the Tucson, AZ Boule chapter.

Professor McGee teaches courses in Land Use Regulation; Environmental and International Environmental Law; Housing and Community Development; and Comparative Law. He graduated from Northwestern University’s Medill School of Journalism, DePaul University School of Law, and Columbia University where he received a Master of Laws.

Licensed to practice law in Illinois in 1957, Professor McGee's career highlights include serving as a county prosecutor in Chicago, litigator in a Chicago law firm, civil rights attorney in Mississippi, and regional director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity Legal Services Program where he participated in generating funding for government-aided legal assistance programs in the Midwest.

At UCLA, Professor McGee served for three years as Director of the UCLA Center for Afro-American Studies, and as director of the UCLA School of Law LL.M. program. He won the Arthur Sutherland Public Service Award in 1990 at UCLA, and was honored by the Los Angeles City Council for accomplishments as a human rights advocate. A Fulbright Professor at the University of Madrid (Complutense in 1982, he won a second Fulbright to the university in 2002 as senior researcher and visiting professor.

Additionally, Professor McGee has authored numerous articles in Spanish, as well as English, and is a co-author of HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT (4th Ed. 2010, in press). He has also visited and taught at other universities in Europe, Latin America and South Africa. Currently, he is a Fellow of the Mexican Academy of Private International and Comparative Law. Professor McGee is also a violinist with the Seattle Philharmonic Orchestra.

Professor McGee is married to Professor Victoria Kill, PhD, who teaches English courses at Seattle University. Between them they have two daughters and five sons.
