OBJECTIVE

To serve as a member of Seattle Bicycle Advisory Board

Why? To help Seattle develop a sustainable transportation system that works for all people and purposes, from recreation to commuting to freight movement. Use of bicycles can help Seattle absorb growth gracefully. Bike use can become a much more substantial proportion of all trips in the city, if the recently updated Bike Master Plan is effectively implemented. For individuals and families, riding bikes can be less expensive, a good way to get exercise, more sociable, more accessible for children. For our city, bike transportation uses the right of way more efficiently for space and cost; improves public health; and reduces our contribution to global warming! As an architect, project manager, and experienced bike rider and advocate, I have knowledge and skills to contribute.

EXPERIENCE WITH CYCLING
